Senate Furor Over Iraq Intel

Republicans outraged as Democrats force rare secret session

WASHINGTON | Democrats forced the Republican-controlled Senate into an unusual closed session Tuesday, questioning intelligence that President George W. Bush used in the run-up to the war in Iraq and accusing Republicans of ignoring the issue.

"They have repeatedly chosen to protect the Republican administration rather than get to the bottom of what happened and why," Democratic leader Harry Reid said.

Taken by surprise, Republicans derided the move as a political stunt. "The United States Senate has been hijacked by the Democratic leadership," said Majority Leader Bill Frist, who called the action a personal affront.

Democrats sought assurances that Intelligence Committee Chairman Pat Roberts of Kansas would complete the second phase of an investigation of the administration's prewar intelligence. After about two hours, senators returned to open session having appointed a bipartisan task force to review the committee's progress and report back to by Nov. 14.

The move shone a spotlight on the continuing controversy over prewar intelligence. No weapons of mass destruction have been found in Iraq, and some Democrats have accused the White House of manipulating the information. (AP)

Bush Details $7.1B Plan For Bird Flu

WASHINGTON | President Bush outlined a $7.1 billion strategy Tuesday to prepare for a possible worldwide super-flu outbreak, aiming to overhaul the vaccine industry so eventually every American could be inoculated within six months of a pandemic's beginning.

Such a huge change would take years to implement — Bush's goal is 2010 — and his plan drew immediate fire from critics who said it wouldn't provide enough protection in the meantime.

The long-awaited strategy also stresses expanded attempts to detect and contain the next super-flu before it reaches the United States, with particular attention to parts of Asia that are influenza incubators — a global focus that flu specialists have advocated.

Bush sought to reassure a public jittery over the spread of bird flu, called H5N1. There is no evidence that a human pandemic is about to start, he said. Still, there have been three flu pandemics in the last century and the world is overdue for another. LAURAN NEERGAARD (AP)

E-MAIL

Finally, a Politician With an Honest Reply

A Crestwood, Ky., woman who asked her state representative to support a bill mistakenly received an e-mail reply from an aide whose comments were meant for the legislator. "It's safe to say 'Thanks for writing, I will consider your views' and not go too far about your personal beliefs," wrote Cheryl Long, an aide to Rep. David Osborne, on Oct. 26. "These people really can get out of hand!... This particular group is much worse than pro-lifers!" Long also wrote: "If you reply to Ms. Amanda, make sure you delete my e-mail!" Then Long accidentally sent the e-mail directly to constituent Amanda McWane. (AP)

Emergency Meeting

A Key West, Fla., man stole an ambulance Thursday to meet a friend, police said. Clark Kendrick drove the ambulance to where his friend was supposed to be waiting, but he wasn't there, so Kendrick drank a beer and hid, police said. The Grinch Who Stole Christmas Beer

A legal battle is brewing over a holiday beer that Connecticut officials want to ban because, they say, its label might entice children to drink. Seriously Bad Elf shows a mean-looking elf with a slingshot firing Christmas ornaments at Santa's sleigh as it flies overhead; state regulations bar alcohol advertising with images that might appeal to children. The regulations specifically mention Santa. Distributor Dan Shelton is fighting the state's rejection of his application to sell the beer. (AP)

Researchers Say City's Levees Had Design Flaws

The engineers who designed the floodwalls that collapsed during Hurricane Katrina did not fully consider the porousness of the Louisiana soil or make other calculations that would have pointed to the need for stronger levees with deeper pilings and wider bases, researchers say. The research team found other problems in the city's flood-control system, including evidence of poor maintenance and confusion over jurisdiction. Researchers are scheduled to report their findings at a congressional hearing Wednesday. (AP)

Judge Removed From DeLay Case

Congressman pushed to oust judge, a Democrat

AUSTIN, TEXAS | In a courtroom victory for Rep. Tom DeLay, the judge in the campaign-finance case against the former House Republican leader was removed Tuesday because of his donations to Democratic candidates and causes.

A semi-retired judge who was called in to hear the dispute, C.W. Bud Duncan, ruled in DeLay's favor without comment. Duncan ordered the appointment of a new judge to preside over the case.

DeLay was forced to step down as House Majority leader — the No. 2 position in the House of Representatives — after he was charged with criminal conspiracy and money laundering in an alleged campaign finance scheme to help put more Republicans in the Texas House and Congress. He is one of the top American political leaders and a key player in getting Bush administration legislation passed in the House.

The ruling came after a hearing in which DeLay's attorneys argued that state District Judge Bob Perkins' political donations created the appearance of bias. Perkins, a Democrat, has contributed to candidates such as John Kerry and the liberal advocacy group MoveOn.org.

Perkins had declined to withdraw from the case. Perkins did not attend the hearing and did not immediately return a call for comment. DeLay had no comment as he left the courthouse. APRIL CASTRO (AP)

Vt. Man Could Get Life Sentence For Syrup Theft

BRATTLEBORO, VT. | Life could get a lot less sweet for a Putney man whose conviction in the sale of stolen maple syrup makes him eligible for life in prison as a habitual offender.

Alito Hearings May Wait Until 2006

Senate judiciary chiefs cool to Bush's plan for vote by end of the year

WASHINGTON | Senate Democrats pushed on Tuesday for a 2006 date for hearings on Supreme Court nominee Samuel Alito, challenging President Bush's call for confirmation by year's end.

"There's no way you can do an honest hearing by the end of December, or a fair hearing," said Sen. Patrick Leahy of Vermont, the senior Democrat on the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The panel's chairman, Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., was non-committal on timing for hearings for Alito, a judge on the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. "This is a swing vote on the Supreme Court. ... I don't know enough yet to say whether it's realistic by the end of the year," he said.

Conservatives have greeted Alito's nomination warmly, many saying they hoped he would move the court to the right if confirmed for O'Connor's seat.

Liberals, pointing to rulings on abortion, gun control, the death penalty and other issues, have already raised the threat of a filibuster, an attempt to deny Alito a yes-or-no vote by the Senate. Republicans hold 55 seats in the Senate, and while confirmation requires a simple majority, it takes 60 votes to overcome a filibuster. DAVID ESPO (AP)

Panel: Revamp Tax Laws

Group suggests plans that would ditch many deductions, credits

WASHINGTON | Declaring the income tax system "has become a running joke," a presidential panel on Tuesday recommended rewriting the nation's tax laws by eliminating virtually every deduction and credit and replacing them with simpler benefits for more taxpayers.

Treasury Secretary John Snow said he would study the report, issued by the President's Advisory Panel on Federal Tax Reform, and hoped to present formal recommendations to President Bush later this year.

The nine members of the commission said key recommendations would be unpopular.

"Many stand waiting to defend their breaks, deductions and loopholes, and to defeat our efforts," the group said in a letter to Snow.

Marginal tax rates would be lower for individuals and businesses under two alternative tax systems endorsed by the panel.

Both would eliminate most deductions and credits in an effort to simplify tremendously complicated calculations. The second of the two tax systems aims to reduce taxes on savings and investments made by businesses and families.

PROPOSED TAX PLANS:

SIMPLIFIED INCOME TAX PLAN:

Levies taxes on individual and business income, but with most of the tax deductions and credits stripped out, leaving only those the panel members believed would encourage behaviors such as saving or home buying.

GROWTH AND INVESTMENT

TAX PLAN: To individual taxpayers, this indirect consumption tax would look identical to the simplified tax plan. Businesses could deduct their capital spending and wages from taxation, but they would lose a deduction for interest payments. (AP)

Postal Service Reduces Moving Bonuses for Execs

WASHINGTON | The Postal Service has drastically curtailed a moving-expense bonus program for senior executives, ending payments of up to $25,000 that allowed officials to pocket thousands of unspent dollars.

The bonuses, which supplement government payments for housing assistance and shipment of household goods, will now be capped at two weeks' salary. For senior executives earning about $165,000, the limit would slightly exceed $6,300. Under the previous policy, most executives who qualified received expense payments of either $10,000 or $25,000. In one instance, an executive received $50,000. (AP)

Mice Sing for Seduction, Scientists Say

ST. LOUIS | Songbirds may be the Sinatras of the animal world, but male mice can carry a tune too, say Washington University researchers who were surprised by what they heard.

Scientists have known for decades that male lab mice produce high-frequency sounds — undetectable by human ears — when they pick up the scent of a female mouse. But it turns out those sounds are more complex and interesting than previously thought.

"It soon became ... apparent that these vocalizations were not random twitterings but songs," said researcher Timothy Holy.

If the analysis by the researchers is confirmed, mice can be added to the short list of creatures that sing for the opposite sex, including songbirds, humpback whales, porpoises, insects and, possibly, bats. (AP)

SQUEAKY SONGS: A male lab mouse, genetically identical to ones found to sing, is seen in St. Louis on Monday.

Moroccan Tied to Iraq Car Bombing

Man allegedly plotted Sept. attack in Balad; bomb kills another GI

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Iraq's government Tuesday blamed a Syria-based Moroccan for the triple car bomb attack that killed at least 60 people last month north of Baghdad, as the country's defense minister called on Arab governments to demand that Syria curb the movement of foreign fighters into this country.

Also Tuesday, the U.S. military said an American soldier was killed by a roadside bomb in central Iraq the day before, raising to at least 93 the number of U.S. service members who died in October, the fourth deadliest month for the troops in the Iraq war.

In a statement, the Iraqi government identified the Moroccan as Muhsen Khayber, also known as Abdul-Majid al-Libi and Abdul-Rahim, who is also sought in his homeland for the terror bombings in Casablanca in May 2003.

The statement alleged that Khayber masterminded the Sept. 29 attack in which three vehicles exploded almost simultaneously in Balad.

Syria Faces Return of U.N. Probe

Assad's government weighing next moves in Hariri investigation

DAMASCUS, SYRIA | The regime of beleaguered President Bashar Assad, given a last chance to cooperate with the United Nations in the Rafik Hariri assassination probe, weighed its next moves Tuesday as the chief U.N. investigator returned to the Middle East and was expected to demand that the Syrian boss and some of his closest relatives submit to questioning.

Significantly, the regime ordered no big street demonstration in support of Assad's rule and the state-run media reacted with moderation to Monday's U.N. resolution that demands Damascus cooperate fully with an investigation into former Lebanese Prime Minister Hariri's Feb. 14 murder in Beirut.

Syria will "cooperate to the utmost limit with the international organization and its various committees," said Tishrin paper, which like other newspapers, reflects government thinking.

U.N. investigator Detlev Mehlis is likely to seek to question Assad's brother-in-law and chief of military intelligence Assef Shawkat, who has been implicated in the killing as well as the president's brother Maher Assad, who is also under suspicion. DONNA ABU-NASR (AP)

U.S. Copter Delivering Aid Fired Upon

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN | Assaults fired an apparent rocket-propelled grenade at a U.S. military helicopter ferrying relief supplies to quake victims in Pakistan's portion of divided Kashmir, the U.S. military said, but it vowed to continue relief flights to the devastated region.

The attack occurred Tuesday as the helicopter was flying over Chakothi, a quake-savaged town near the Line of Control that separates the Pakistani and Indian portions of the Himalayan region, Capt. Rob Newell, a spokesman for the U.S. military relief effort, told The Associated Press.

He said four American crew members, a Pakistani pilot and a freelance journalist on board at the time were not hurt. Newell said the U.S. Army and the Pakistani government were investigating.

Pakistani army spokesman Maj. Gen. Shaukat Sultan told AP that he doubted any such attack took place, noting that road-clearing engineers were blasting a road near where the helicopters were flying. (AP)

Koreas to Form One '08 Team

Officials from North, South announce plan to unify Olympic bids

MACAU | North and South Korea have agreed in principle to form a unified team for the 2008 Beijing Olympics and next year's Asian Games, and now all that remains is to work out the details.

The nations issued a joint statement Tuesday declaring their intention to field one team. The statement followed a three-hour meeting between North and South Korean Olympic officials in the Chinese territory of Macau.

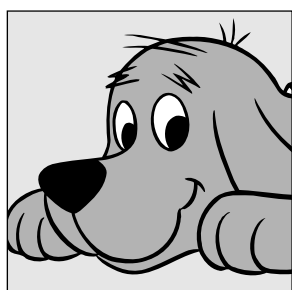

The two sides have long talked about combining sports forces. Neither side signed Tuesday's document, however, and previous talk about merging the teams faded amid deep mutual distrust.

But Kim Sang-woo of the Korean Olympic Committee said there was optimism that merging the teams would be possible because of a thawing in relations since North Korean leader Kim Jong Il met former South Korean President Kim Dae-jung in an unprecedented summit in 2000.

Dust, dirt, pollen and other filth we cleaned from ducts in a 6 year old townhome

Pre-Season Sale

Are you breathing polluted indoor air?

FACT: Children and the elderly are especially affected by polluted indoor air. (Department of Consumer Affairs)

FACT: The levels of hazardous pollutants in indoor air has been found to be up to 70 times greater than in outdoor air. (EPA)

FACT: 50% of all illnesses are caused by polluted indoor air. (American College of Allergists)

FACT: One out of six people who suffer from allergies do so because of the direct relationship to fungi and bacteria in air duct systems. (Total Health Magazine)

Dust, dirt, pollen, animal dander and other air-borne contaminants are pulled into your duct system every time the furnace or air conditioner runs.

These contaminants build up inside the ductwork over time and can help make your duct system a breeding ground for mold spores, bacteria, fungus, mildew and other microbes.

Each time the furnace or air conditioner is turned on, contaminants are spewed out and circulated throughout your home and affect the health and comfort of your family.

Family members who suffer from allergies, asthma or other respiratory ailments as well as children and the elderly are especially vulnerable to the effects of indoor air pollutants.

The removal of contaminants from the entire HVAC system is recognized by industry experts as the most effective way to eliminate air duct pollutants. This is referred to as the "source removal" method of duct cleaning.

In addition to the obvious health benefits, ducts cleaning can help you maintain a cleaner home. It also helps to restore HVAC system capacity and lessen running time, resulting in lower heating and cooling bills.

The HEPA-AIRE method used by our company assures you that your ducts are being cleaned with the most advanced source removal equipment available.

Americas Summit Draws Protesters

Activists in Argentina hope to air grievances on U.S. policies, trade

MAR DEL PLATA, ARGENTINA | Protesters opposed to President Bush and moves to liberalize trade worldwide gathered Tuesday for a "People's Summit" to counter an upcoming meeting of leaders from 34 Western Hemisphere nations.

Arriving in buses and minivans at the seaside resort of Mar del Plata, the demonstrators gathered at a drab concrete sports complex miles from the luxury hotel where the fourth Summit of the Americas gets under way Friday.

Riot police in Argentina are already in position near the site of the summit.

The protesters waved flags emblazoned with the Communist hammer and sickle and pictures of Argentine-born Che Guevara, a famed figure from the Cuban revolution.

"This is a chance for the real people to hold their own summit," said Wayra Aru Blanco, a 33-year-old Bolivian Indian, beating calf-skin drums.

Organizers expect thousands more to arrive for the protest summit, a chance to air grievances from the Iraq war to free trade policies they say enslave Latin American workers. They are hoping to draw 50,000 people for their highlight event — a protest Thursday as Bush arrives on Air Force One.

Heavy security precautions were being taken at the resort where the summit is being held, with some 10,000 police and security forces already deployed in Mar del Plata. Argentine officials said they will have enough police on hand to counter any violent protests.

The government leaders are expected to hold talks on free trade, job creation and bolstering democracy. ALAN CLENENNING (AP)

ANGER FLARES: Firefighters try to extinguish a car that was torched late Monday night, during the fifth night of rioting in the Paris suburb of Clichy-sous-Bois.

New Violence Erupts in Troubled Paris Suburbs

PARIS | Violence erupted for a sixth night Tuesday in the troubled suburbs northeast of Paris with police firing rubber bullets and tear gas as they faced down gangs of youths in Aulnay-sous-Bois, according to witnesses.

No trouble was immediately reported in Clichy-sous-Bois, where rioting began last Thursday following the accidental deaths of two teenagers. The latest violence broke out as Interior Minister Nicolas Sarkozy met in Paris with youths and officials from Clichy-sous-Bois.

France-Info radio reported about 100 fires burning in numerous suburbs of the Seine-Saint-Denis regions.

Tension had mounted throughout the day after angry young men torched cars, garbage bins and even a primary school in several days of rioting that highlighted the division between France's big cities and their poor satellites where disenchantment thrives.

Suburbs that ring France's big cities, home to immigrant communities often from Muslim North Africa, suffer from soaring unemployment and discrimination problems. ELAINE GANLEY (AP)

Man With Knife Goes After Tourists

Attack by homeless man in Lafayette Park sends 3 to hospital

WASHINGTON | Police charged a homeless man in a knife attack Tuesday on tourists in Lafayette Park, across the street from the White House.

Three men were taken to George Washington University hospital with minor injuries, police said. A woman was also attacked. She was not hurt, although her clothes were slashed in the assault. Police questioned witnesses to the attack, who declined to comment as they left the scene.

Stanley Battle, 48, was charged with four counts of assault with a deadly weapon and four counts of assault with intent to kill, a Secret Police investigate the scene of Tuesday's stabbings in Lafayette Park in front of the White House. A homeless man was arrested after attacking four people.

Service spokesman said.

The seemingly random attack shocked visitors to the heavily policed Lafayette Park, as they were enjoying an unusually warm autumn afternoon. "This is a very safe place and we feel that this was just a random event," said Lt. Phil Beck of the U.S. Park Police.

Battle was arrested by a uniformed Secret Service officer who witnessed the incident.

The officer saw Battle wave a "Leatherman"-type knife, then turn on the four visitors — believed to be tourists — slashing three of them.

As part of their investigation, officers planted dozens of small red flags, each marking off a cluster of blood droplets, around the crime scene at the foot of a statue of a Revolutionary War hero.

High Court Hears Case of Teen's Treatment by Police

The Supreme Court considered Tuesday whether police tricked a Maryland teenager into answering questions about a murder in a case that will give authorities guidelines for dealing with suspects who demand to see an attorney but then talk anyway. The 17-year-old in the high court case, Leeander Jerome Blake, was left in a cold cell, shoeless and in his underwear after asking to see a lawyer. He was then shown paperwork that wrongly said he faced the death penalty. A Maryland assistant attorney general acknowledged that the officer made a mistake, but said it wasn't serious enough to throw out incriminating statements that Blake made later. (AP)

Metro Plan Would Eliminate Seats

Agency seeking board approval to test new designs of train cars

WASHINGTON | Some new Metrorail cars may have fewer seats and more handrails.

Metro will ask board members Thursday for approval to test two new seating designs. One will lose 12 seats, the other 16, while the number of handrails increases by about 40 percent, according to Metro senior program manager Jeff Pringle. Both designs, as well as all the new 6000 series rail cars, will no longer have the floor-to-ceiling handrails near the doors. "We're trying to improve passenger flow," Pringle said Tuesday.

Instead, the new cars will have a double row of handrails along the ceiling running the length of the car, with spring handles to grab. The backs of most seats will have vertical poles to encourage people to the center of the train.

"The idea is to try to pull them to the center of the car. It is easier and more inviting to move down the car and get out," said Metro chief engineer Dan Hanlon. "A lot of the time people stay near the door because they don't want to have to fight their way out."

The chairman of Metro's elderly and disabled riders' committee, Patrick Sheehan, said removing the floor to ceiling poles will allow more room for passengers in wheelchairs.

The standard Metro car has 64 seats. One design would have 52 seats. The other would have 48.

If the test plan is approved, Metro would then videotape how passengers use the new designs to see if they really help. A final design would be recommended late next year. HEATHER GREENFIELD (AP)

Council Approves Stadium Changes

WASHINGTON | Members of the District of Columbia Council approved a measure Tuesday to strengthen the city's financing plan for a new baseball stadium for the Washington Nationals.

The 10-2 vote approved changes sought by Wall Street bond traders, enabling the city to pursue a $535 million bond sale at investment grade, saving the city millions in debt service costs.

Some members who passionately opposed the measure during negotiations with Major League Baseball last year said they would support the measure to preserve the city's credibility.

"I'd like to redo the whole thing," said Council member Carol Schwartz, R-At Large.

Representatives of Major League Baseball are expected to be in the city Thursday for meetings with prospective ownership groups.

The price tag for the team, which is now owned by the other 29 major league owners, is $450 million. DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

Fed Again Hikes Key Interest Rate

Officials nudge price to highest level since '01 to control inflation

WASHINGTON | The Federal Reserve, still concerned about inflation, raised a key interest rate on Tuesday to the highest level in more than four years and signaled more increases are likely. The Fed announced it was pushing its target for the federal funds rate, the interest that banks charge each other, to 4 percent from 3.75 percent, where it had been since the Fed's last interest-rate meeting on Sept. 20. It marked the 12th consecutive quarter-point increase since the Fed began gradually raising rates in June 2004 to make sure that a growing economy does not generate higher inflation. Tuesday's rate hike had been widely expected, given that a number of Fed officials in recent weeks have expressed worries that the sharp rise in energy prices that occurred in early September presented the danger of wider inflation pressures down the road. The Fed rate increase was quickly followed by an increase in commercial banks' prime lending rate, led by Cleveland-based KeyCorp. The prime was raised to 7 percent, the highest level for this benchmark for consumer and business borrowing since June 2001. (AP)

Washington Casts a Different Spell

Wizards try to match last year's results with their brand-new roster

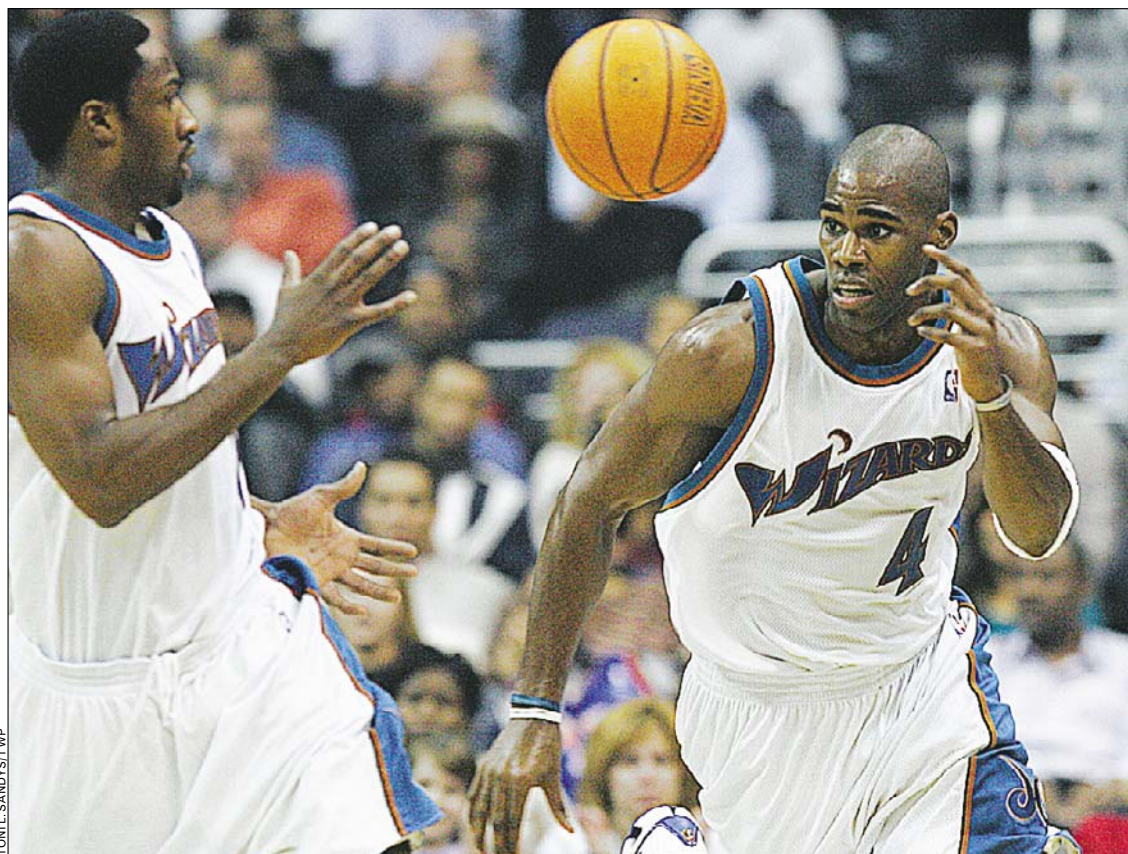

WIZARDS | Last year's magic trick for the Wizards was pulling a play-off team out of a hat. Feats of the unexpected continued during the offseason, as a wave of the Wizards' wand turned that squad into ... well, something completely different.

The Wizards kick off their season Wednesday having revamped the team that brought Washington its first NBA postseason appearance in eight years and its first playoff series win since 1982. Star power has been replaced with depth. Youth has been replaced with experience. And so, the Wizards seek a way to duplicate last year's results with a new formula.

"It's kind of different, because you're trying to learn a new system and build the chemistry with this team collectively," said shooting guard Antonio Daniels, brought in from Seattle where he averaged 11.2 points a game last year.

Daniels, center Calvin Booth, shooting guard Caron Butler and point guard Chucky Atkins all are now part of the new-look Wizards, who are now without star shooting guard Larry Hughes, former No. 1 pick Kwame Brown, and ex-Maryland standouts Juan Dixon and Steve Blake.

Hughes scored 22 points a game last season, catching the attention of the league and leading to a big contract offer from the Cleveland Cavaliers.

BIG TWO: With Larry Hughes in Cleveland, that leaves Gilbert Arenas, left, and Antawn Jamison as the last part of the Big 3.

3 BURNING QUESTIONS

→ Up for a Tall Order? Center Brendan Haywood has to compete with the likes of Primož Brezac and some guy named Shaq.

→ Whither Jared? Either forward Jared Jeffries will fulfill his potential or head to the bench behind Jarvis Hayes.

→ Why Start Now? Playing some defense would be a nice change of pace.

A major task for the Wizards this year will be filling that hole.

While last year's strategy was to get the ball to one of the Big Three — Hughes, power forward Antawn Jamison and point guard Gilbert Arenas — this year is about using that depth and experience by spreading the offense across the roster.

"Chucky, Antonio and Caron, and now, Calvin, these guys have been there and done that," said Jamison. "They're not only good players on the court, but they're good guys to have in the locker room."

That seems to be the key. What made last year's Wizards so successful was that unique chemistry between the Big Three. If the Wizards hope to recreate those results, they'll need those same relationships.

"We use the word chemistry: How well do we play together?" said coach Eddie Jordan. "We have to find out about each other."

CHRIS MINCHER (EXPRESS)

New Wizards Have a 'Mob' Mentality

WIZARDS | The Washington Wizards barely had a bench when they opened the regular season a year ago. This year, they've got a "bench mob."

That's the unruly nickname Caron Butler, acquired in an off-season trade with the Los Angeles Lakers, has given to the team's second unit. Butler has been a starter his whole career and on Monday signed to a five-year contract extension worth about $45 million, but he begins the season as the sixth man on the Wizards totem pole.

"We're the 'bench mob.' We're going to come out and pick up where the starters left off, keep the energy going, keep the intensity going and leave it all out there," Butler said. "I'm not used to it, and I'm not going to get used to it. But I'm just going to continue to go out there and play hard. It's something that I'm not going to get used to."

The fact that Butler is a reserve indicates the Wizards' depth going into Wednesday night's opener at Toronto. Jared Jeffries (small forward) and Antonio Daniels (shooting guard) won the two vacant starting positions during preseason.

Jarvis Hayes would have been the shooting guard if his knee had not flared up again, but he says he's ready to go and be a part of Butler's so-called mob, along with Etan Thomas, Chucky Atkins and Michael Ruffin. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

NATIONALS | BY MATT SWENSON

This Bud's Not For the Nats

ON BEHALF of every Washington Nationals fan, here's a message to Bud Selig: Pick an owner already!

If it weren't so damaging to the franchise, Major League Baseball's dragging of its feet on the matter would be comical.

First we heard sometime in spring training. Then the target date was before opening day. By June, Commissioner Selig promised the All-Star Game would be the absolute latest time for a decision. Labor Day was the next target, followed by Oct. 4 — right after the regular season ended.

Well, the World Series is now over and here the Nationals sit without an owner, and the disjointed nature of each rumor suggests this might not get done until the Cubs win a World Series.

Word on the street last month was that baseball was down to three finalists, two of whom were local. But no group was officially eliminated. Why? So the second shoe could drop, which may be happening now.

The current rumor is Selig wants to combine some groups. That way, the D.C. Council gets its wish of a local owner (probably) and Selig can put one of his buddies (Stan Kasten?) on the team, too.

Meanwhile, Nats players are filing for free agency and there isn't anyone to raise the team's budget and manager Frank Robinson's still in limbo and every Nationals employee is basically wearing an interim tag.

Come on, Bud, get on the ball.

Ravens Hopeful After Loss

Billick won't give up on playoff talk despite Baltimore's 2-5 record

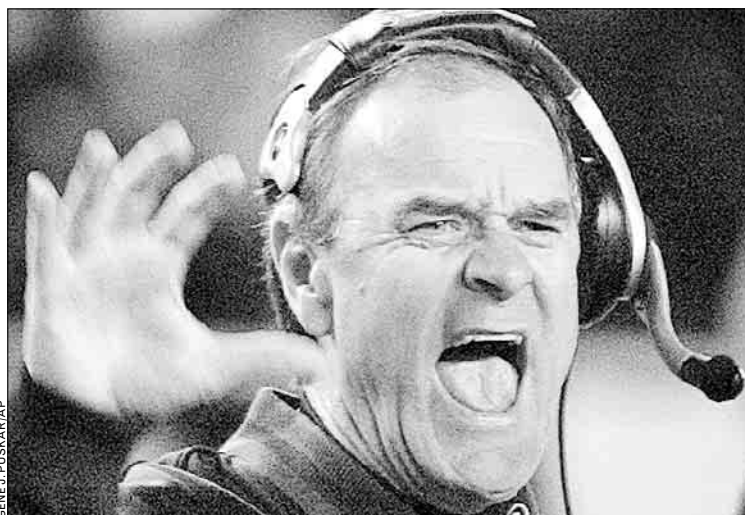

RAVENS | The Baltimore Ravens put forth a marvelous performance against the Pittsburgh Steelers, backing a fine effort by a depleted defense with an attack that scored more points than in any game this season.

And still the Ravens lost.

Now what?

Coach Brian Billick conceded Tuesday that Baltimore (2-5) has virtually no chance to win the AFC North, but expressed hope his team could derive enough positives from Monday night's 20-19 defeat to mount a charge at a wild-card berth.

"We're going to have to get on a heck of a run. We're cognizant of that," Billick said. "But until someone tells us that mathematically isn't going to happen, that's the hook you have to hold on to. That's where you generate your enthusiasm. Why give up on that hope?"

Baltimore coach Brian Billick doesn't want the Ravens to stop believing that the team has a chance to make the playoffs despite yet another loss on Monday night.

If the Ravens played earlier this season as they did against Pittsburgh, then reaching the playoffs wouldn't be nearly as imposing a task. Operating without injured starters Ray Lewis, Ed Reed and Anthony Weaver, the Baltimore defense forced two turnovers and held the Steelers to 261 yards.

The offense was efficient, too. The Ravens were averaging an NFL-worst 11.5 points per game before breaking loose for five scoring drives, 20 first downs and 25 pass completions.

"There are some things we can definitely build on," Billick said.

D.C.'s Problematic Season

UNITED | D.C. United President
Kevin Payne sat on a table in a somber locker room Sunday evening and rattled off his club's 2005 failures.

It was clear United's best regular season in six years barely registered against its gut-wrenching elimination from four competitions, beginning with a 5-0 loss to a Mexican team in April's continental championship and concluding with this weekend's humiliating 4-0 MLS playoff loss to Chicago.

"We continue to make relatively simple errors," he said. "In real games you tend to get punished for that stuff and we've done it all year long."

For all of Coach Peter Nowak's talk about fortitude, heart and teamwork, United seemed to lack those qualities when it mattered most. It's nearly impossible to examine United's listless performance and not recall the mental breakdowns and curious coaching decisions in the closing minutes of August's Open Cup quarterfinal against Dallas, or the team's inability to hold a two-goal lead in a prestigious South American tournament in September.

"I think people have to look at the mistakes that keep being made and we have to hold ourselves accountable," Payne said.

The extent of that accountability will be the story of the offseason. Peter Nowak remained defiant Sunday and has been retained for next year. There is no indication that Freddy Adu, who saw 45 minutes of playing time in the two-game series

GOMEZ SORRY FOR SPIT

League Soccer for my actions.
What I did was wrong, and I am deeply sorry for what happened.
It was a frustrating night and I let the emotions get the best of me,"

Seven-Seated Wonder

The Commander SUV breaks a Jeep record for people-hauling

ROAD TEST | The 2006 Jeep Commander has an old-style look on the outside. But there's a trendy surprise inside: Seats for seven people.

Newly introduced, the Commander sport utility vehicle is the first Jeep in history with seven seats. In comparison, today's mid-size Grand Cherokee can carry a maximum of five people.

All this, as well as Jeep's rugged off-road capability and a Hemi V8, are available in the Commander, which has a starting MSRP of $27,985 for a two-wheel-drive model with V6 engine.

Available in base and Limited trim levels, the Commander won't be confused with anything other than a Jeep. In fact, its boxy styling which Jeep says is inspired by the

The Commander has the unmistakable Jeep shape, plus an extra two seats.

Wagoneer of the 1960s looks a lot like the old Jeep Cherokee before the Cherokee was dropped from showrooms in 2001.

Shoppers will notice the Commander's styling includes exposed bolt heads inside and outside. The bolts attaching the wheel well flares are visible, for example, and there are at least two dozen — some simulated, some real — in the front seat area.

The two-tone dashboard that sits up rather high took some getting used to, especially for the front passenger whose seat doesn't include height adjustment.

But the test vehicle's rich saddle brown leather seats that were darker than the beige color we're all accustomed to seeing inside vehicles added an almost rugged Western sense to this SUV. The upgrade price for the optional Saddle Leather on the already leather-trimmed Commander Limited is $150.

The base Commander powerplant is a 210-horsepower, 3.7-liter, single overhead cam V6 with 235 foot-pounds of torque at 4,000 rpm. The midlevel engine is a 235-horsepower, 4.7-liter, single overhead cam V8 with 305 foot-pounds of torque at 4,500 rpm.

But the engine that's likely to be preferred for moving seven passengers is the 5.7-liter, 90-degree, Hemi V8. There's nearly 100 more horsepower — 330 — from the Hemi than there is from the midline V8, and torque of 375 foot-pounds at 4,000 rpm means the vehicle won't feel sluggish.

This engine in the test vehicle performed admirably, with strong, steady power coming on during passing maneuvers and a satisfying feel of get up and go even in city traffic. Note that the Hemi makes the Commander the most powerful seven-seat SUV on the market.

Don't expect a rough, noisy ride in the Commander. The test SUV was impressively quiet inside and provided a mostly cushioned ride on the pavement, with nary a bump coming through to jar passengers.

Power, rack-and-pinion steering was competent, and the vehicle had a surprisingly agile personality, given its size, in slalom maneuvers. There was none of the unwieldy, uncomfortable handling found in some other SUVs. ANN M. JOB (AP)

HOLY BATTLE: The authors of the nonfiction history "Holy Blood, Holy Grail" have filed a lawsuit — finally, fans of the 1982 book note — against Dan Brown's publisher, saying Brown's "Da Vinci Code" stole many of Michael Baigent and Richard Leigh's ideas.

DOWN THESE CLEAN STREETS: Riley Freeman is trying to live the thug life in leafy suburbia in Adult Swim's "The Boondocks."

No One Is Safe

Aaron McGruder's TV 'Boondocks' aims for multiple targets

TOON TALK | Aaron McGruder has been called a "genius" and "the angriest black man in America" as he skewered everything from the Bush White House to Black Entertainment Television.

The new TV version of McGruder's popular comic strip, "The Boondocks," which premieres Sunday night on Cartoon Network's Adult Swim, will retain the edge that has periodically gotten the strip pulled from newspapers, including the Washington Post.

"For me, it really first has to be a good story and be funny," McGruder said. "If you're doing sincere comedy, the edgy stuff kind of happens on its own."

"Boondocks" follows the adventures of junior revolutionary Huey Freeman and his hip-hop obsessed younger brother, Riley (both voiced by actress Regina King), who live in a white, middle-class suburb with their cantankerous grandfather (John Witherspoon).

While the series won't tackle current events (the 15-episode order took 18 months to complete), it's certainly not lacking in irreverence. One episode centers on the resurrection of Martin Luther King Jr., whose non-violent message is ridiculed in a post-9/11 world by media outlets such as Time Warner's CNN and Time magazine (Cartoon Network is a division of Time Warner).

McGruder began writing the strip in 1997 while attending the University of Maryland. Now it's carried in about 350 newspapers, although some have moved it to the editorial page.

A few papers temporarily pulled the strip for its attacks against the war in Iraq in 2001. And earlier this year, several papers dropped it for a few days because of its use of the n-word — which is sprinkled throughout the TV series.

"This is a country that celebrates Richard Pryor as a genius and still we wonder if we should be using the word 'nigga' in entertainment," said McGruder, 31. "It's a conversation that hasn't gone anywhere in about 30 years."

Bringing "Boondocks" to TV took several years. Fox made a pilot two years ago, but McGruder said the network's "rigid creative rules" made the experience a nightmare.

Cartoon Network "is letting me do the show I want to do," McGruder said. And audiences seem to be ready.

"I'm shocked at what he's allowed to get away with," said Witherspoon. "Like this trial of R. Kelly and the use of the n-word, [although] Dave Chappelle got very wealthy off of it. But I think this is going to set a precedent for cartoons."

Nine Inch Nails: Industrial Age

He may have left his sex-symbol status in the '90s, but Nine Inch Nails lead singer Trent Reznor is still the icon of the industrial music scene. The seemingly ever-disgruntled frontman and his band bring their grinding cacophony to the MCI center tonight.

MCI Center, 601 F St. NW; 7 p.m., $45; 202-628-3200. (Gallery Place-Chinatown)

NIN's Trent Reznor still has the biceps, but he's more tormented than ever.

Bowen McCauley Dance: Local Motion

Support your dancing neighbors! Arlington-based Bowen McCauley Dance is known for its wit, athleticism and sensuality. Check out some high-end art for free at this evening performance.

Kennedy Center, Millennium Stage, 2700 F St. NW; 6 p.m., free; 202-467-4600. (Foggy Bottom-GWU)

Joan Baez: Folk Art

With eight gold albums and six Grammy nods under her crocheted belt, '60s folk singer-songwriter and political activist Joan Baez brings her emotional ballads and sublime soprano to the Birchmere and proves to a new generation of concertgoers that she's still got it.

Birchmere Music Hall, 3701 Mt. Vernon Ave., Alexandria; 7:30 p.m., $45; 703-549-7500.

A Final, Satisfying 'Star Wars'

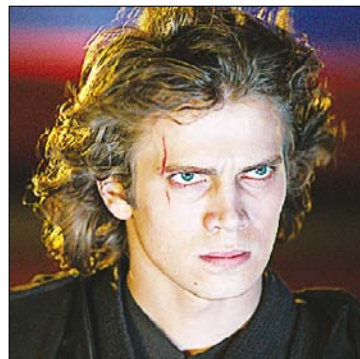

'Revenge of the Sith' plays just as well on the small screen

DVD | When "Star Wars: Episode III — Revenge of the Sith" hit theaters last May, the most successful film franchise in history concluded with a big, box-office bang.

Fortunately for "Star Wars" fans, this two-disc set will make a respectable addition to their libraries of Skywalker-related releases.

Like its DVD predecessors, the film looks sharp, sounds superb and comes with an arsenal of extras, including six deleted scenes, several documentaries and a commentary track.

Of course, one's level of interest in those bonus features will depend largely on one's degree of Darth Vader devotion. Viewers disappointed in actor Hayden Christensen's transformation from upstanding Jedi to heavy-breathing-doer-of-all-Evil may not care to listen to the only-occasionally-interesting commentary track from director George Lucas, producer Rick McCallum and other artists who worked on the film.

NO GOING BACK: The transformation from Anakin to Darth is history now.

Lifelong Darth-heads, on the other hand, will relish every moment, particularly the lengthy documentary "Within a Minute," which examines the creation of the climactic Mustafar light saber duel between Anakin Skywalker and Obi-Wan Kenobi.

SO WHERE'S MY PONY? Some letters to Santa Claus will be answered this year. "Dear Santa," a special where some of the wishes expressed in letters to Santa are granted for a TV audience, will air Dec. 9, Fox network and the U.S. Postal Service announced.

That Undead Show

Please, Fox, put this formerly good sitcom out of its misery

ZOMBIES | The eighth season of "That '70s Show" (8 p.m., Fox) premieres, a comedy that has been kept alive by artificial means for some years now.

Despite its often crude dialogue — one-liners about sex and stoners — one couldn't help liking this show. Its cast was arguably the best in network comedy. And now at least two members of this strong ensemble have gone on to better things: Topher Grace and his character Erik and Ashton Kutcher's dim Kelso.

Fox must think that, with some cast shuffles, it can keep this thing going.

But they are not the only performers to have long outgrown this series. Mila Kunis (the spoiled Jackie) and Laura Prepon (the cool Donna) have become more attractive and more accomplished with each passing season. If there is any silver lining to watching this show collapse around itself, it's the fact that they get more screen time.

As all ailing shows must, "That '70s Show" will introduce new characters to replace departed favorites. It's not giving away too much here to reveal that Hyde (Danny Masterson) will hire "a new guy" (Josh Meyers as Randy) for his pot-den record store. He's Randy (Josh Meyers). ON TV TONIGHT

'IS ANYBODY LISTENING? I'M STUCK ON THIS CRAP SHOW!'
E-RING (8 p.m., NBC) Angie can't talk about her troubles.

WILL IT REMOVE AWFUL JIM?
The teams tangle to sell a new stain removal product on THE APPRENTICE: MARTHA STEWART (9 p.m., NBC). Try to contain your excitement.

GOING DOWN
CSI: NY (10 p.m., NBC) A tycoon's fate-ful elevator ride.

A TIME BEFORE THE DISNEY STORE ON 5TH? UNTHINKABLE!
A young man (Timothy Hutton) uses graffiti to avenge his brother and shame corrupt politicians in the 1985 comedy TURK 182! (10 p.m., Fox Movie Channel). A depiction of New York

AWFUL JIM, TOP: There's a fine line between TV villain and annoying jerk.

City before it became a gilded shopping mall, this film sports an interesting supporting cast, featuring Robert Ulrich, Kim Cattrall, Robert Culp, Darren McGavin, Steven Keats, Peter Boyle and Paul Sorvino. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Life Stories.

I became a mother at 16.
The only way I could support my beautiful baby girl was to drop out of school and work.

She's 5 now and about to start school in the fall.
I want to get my GED to improve our lives.
I also want to become a college graduate.

I know it's one small step at a time, so I'm putting one foot forward.

It's not too late to get your GED!

Help that empowers. Hope that lasts.

Every year, we assist more than one hundred thousand people in the Washington area. And you can too, by designating Catholic Charities Foundation - United Way/CFC #8054.

- We provide the help that carries people through crises — and the hope that strengthens lives.
- We secure housing for Hurricane Katrina survivors swept away to an unfamiliar place — and pay the unexpected bills of working families trying to keep their homes.
- We shelter single mothers looking for refuge for their children — and teach them a better way to provide for their families.
- We guide people with disabilities toward independence — and minister to the medical needs of immigrants.

Tourism

Southern metropolis embarks on a search for its brand identity

It's the city of Martin Luther King Jr., Falcons quarterback Michael Vick and Outkast, the duo behind the "Hey Ya!" smash hit — not to mention home to Coca-Cola, CNN and "Gone With The Wind."

Yet Atlanta has always struggled to crystallize all that it is into an image the rest of the world can embrace.

Nothing summed up that futility more than during the run-up to the 1996 Summer Olympics, when Atlanta unveiled its mascot of the games, Izzy — an amorphous blob.

"Atlantans love their city, but the word has not traveled as far as we would have hoped," Mayor Shirley Franklin acknowledged in October as she announced a $4.5 million marketing campaign. The campaign coincides with the debut of what is billed as the world's largest aquarium on Nov. 23; the Nov. 12 opening of three new buildings at the High Museum of Art; a new retail center, Atlantic Station, and two new boutique hotels scheduled to open next year.

The city has also unveiled a flashy new red-and-white logo and a new theme song — "The ATL" — penned by Atlanta hip-hop producer Dallas Austin. A campaign slogan will be announced during a downtown concert Nov. 10.

It's all aimed at helping Atlanta catch up with cities such as Las Vegas and New York, where years of heavy marketing have paid off with ever-increasing tourism numbers.

For visitor Pam Grapatin, of Cleveland, there is clearly much several high-profile attractions and developments will bring new life to the hit-or-miss appeal of Atlanta's downtown.

For vacationers who like to shop, the new Atlantic Station is a mix of chain stores like Banana Republic along with local shops like Metropolitan Deluxe, a gift-andhousewares store.

The Georgia Aquarium, bankrolled by Home Depot founder Bernie Marcus, claims to have 8 million gallons of exhibit space and 100,000 animals from 500 species — including the only whale-sharks on view in North America.

work to be done.

"To be honest, being from Cleveland, you don't think too much about Atlanta except that it has a bunch of traffic," she said as she snapped pictures at Centennial Olympic Park. And she's a travel agent.

But tourism officials hope that

Md. professor is expert on low-profile sport of decathlon

An economist by trade, Frank Zarnowski also has a full-time hobby — perhaps an obsession.

The professor at Mount St. Mary's University in Emmitsburg, Md., happens to be the world's authority on the decathlon, a 10-event track and field contest. And the tale — as you find frequently with Zarnowski — involves a certain amount of serendipity. It goes back to a 1970 NCAA track and field meet at Macalester College in St. Paul, Minn., where he was assistant coach at his alma mater.

"The decathlon didn't have an announcer," he explained. "But there was a live mic on the infield." A sinewy, long-distance runner with little decathlon background, Zarnowski strolled down to the area and began to announce the competition.

"I tried to make myself an expert in something no one else cared about."

FRANK ZARNOWSKI

He did the same thing a week later at the NCAA championships. The next year, the NCAA invited him back, and by 1984, Zarnowski was announcing the decathlon at the Los Angeles Olympics.

His entrance into color commentary for televised track and field events began in similar fashion.

At the 1983 world track and field championships in Helsinki, Zarnowski — attending as a spectator, but sitting in the press box — was approached by CBS. Commentator Dan Jenner had canceled at last minute; Zarnowski took his place. From there, he worked on television crews at the 1988 and 1992 Olympics, as well as on radio broadcasts at the 1996 Olympics.

While he was offered a job for the 2000 games, he was unable to obtain a sabbatical from Mount St. Mary's. Instead he contributed Internet coverage. He returned to the 2004 Athens Olympics, where he worked for NBC HDTV.

Decathlon competitions are split into two days. At least 30 minutes separate each event. Day One includes 100 meters, long jump, high jump, shot put and 400 meters; Day Two, the 110-meter hurdles, discus, pole vault, javelin and 1,500 meters.

According to Zarnowski, "the actual action" over the two-day period can amount to less than eight minutes. To fill hours of dead air, "you need lots of information," he said. "I tried to make myself an expert in something no one else cared about," and in the process, accumulated piles of records.

What began as a quest to compile the complete history of the decathlon naturally lead him to publishing, he said. His first book, "The Decathlon" came out in 1989.

The latest releases, "All-Around Men: Heroes of a Forgotten Sport" (Scarecrow Press, Inc. 2005) focuses further on the decathlon. DICKSON MERCER (THE FREDERICK NEWS-POST)

New fall fragrances for men and women look to the stars for inspiration

SCENTUAL HEALING: LIVE

JENNIFER LOPEZ ($40 for 1.7 oz, sephora.com) is called "choreography for the senses," with opening notes of lemon and pineapple. The heart is red currant with peony and violet, and the base is caramel with tonka beans and sandalwood.

AM I BLUE?: Ralph Lauren's new fragrance for women, PURE TURQUOISE ($55 for 2.5 oz at polo.com) is for the woman who is "open to new experiences." It's an exotic floral blend, with notes like Lily of the Valley, Bulgarian rose, Vanilla Bourbon and rum. Each bottle is topped with a one-of-a-kind natural turquoise stone, which is said to offer protection and strength.

THE HORSE, OF COURSE: Ralph Lauren's new men's scent, POLO BLACK ($48 for 2.5 oz, polo.com), builds upon the designer's fall fashion collection, which was inspired by antique racing cars. The aromatic wood fusion fragrance blends iced mango, silver armoise (an herb grown in France) and patchouli noir. The packaging is inspired by a flask.

A PERFECT PAIR: Lanvin launches the male counterpart, ARPEGE POUR HOMME ($56, escentual.co.uk), 80 years after the classic women's Arpege. Perfumer Olivier Pescheux studied the women's perfume to come up with the complementary formula of pink peppercorns, bitter orange, iris, nutmeg, vanilla and rare woods, among other notes.

Smell Like a Star: Many fragrances are built around a "note," a singly scent that will stand out and linger even when surrounded by a dozen other familiar smells. TRUE STAR MEN by Tommy Hilfiger, however, is built around a man — and his mood. Enrique Iglesias is the male muse for the cologne, and he is someone who is easygoing and relaxed, says Hilfiger, so the scent had to be, too. The actual scent is a soft spiced wood with touches of pink grapefruit, black licorice, saffron and sandalwood. Hilfiger said, "A lot of women will buy this for their men. They'll say, 'If Enrique wears it, I want my man to be similar.'" This fall — and looking ahead to the holiday season — there are both men's and women's fragrances for all styles and tastes. Beauty

Uplifting Experience

If you must, you must, you must increase your bust, here's something new to try: POUT BUST ENHANCING CREME ($42, sephora.com). The critical ingredient: an extract of Shiitake mushrooms. One tester found that no creme can undo what years of gravity hath wrought. A perkier subject said it did seem to tighten things up, though slathering it on was a source of self-consciousness. And any sort of shimmer draws (more) attention to exposed cleavage. After all, the bigger the better, the tighter the sweater; the boys depend on us. HOLLY J. MORRIS (EXPRESS)

Beauty

Lash Out Longer

Those who must live their lives with sparse, thin, short or blonde lashes know too well the pain of promises made and broken. Tempted again and again, we buy mascaras only to condemn them to the bottom of the makeup bag. Finally, one mascara lives up to its promises. L'OREAL'S VOLUME SHOCKING MASCARA ($13) is a two-step system: First, apply a white base coat. Then use a teeny, comb-like wand to apply the mascara. Results were impressive: long-lasting, thick and wonderfully extended lashes had this tester batting her eyes for all to see. Go easy, though — too heavy a hand will lead to major clumping. KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY (EXPRESS)

ANDREA BONIOR, PH.D.

The Art of the Tactful Inquiry

If you see a friend doing things that seem out of character, how do you approach it? Is it ever OK to inquire about someone's mental health? We are not really close, but we have lunch every once in a while. The past few times she didn't look well, and she's been talking about quitting her job without having plans to do anything else. —WONDERING, ARLINGTON

It's not usually OK to pointedly question someone's mental health, unless, of course, that person has chosen to appear on "Kill Reality." But it is always OK to show support and concern. It's so much simpler than it sounds: Something like, "I've been a bit concerned about you lately; you haven't quite seemed yourself. I'm here if you want to talk." It lets the person know you care without making them feel like they're sitting behind a two-way mirror. You may never find out what's up, but if that bothers you more than the fact she might be having a hard time, please make sure you're not just after some good dirt.

I married a man who saved my life. But I'm in love with a man who could care less about me except as a place to deposit sperm. I've only experienced the feelings I have for him one other time, and that ended in disaster. Here I am, years later, at ground zero with this new man. Why can't I find a man to whom I'm attracted, with whom I can be head-over-heels in love, for whom I would do anything, who feels the same about me?

—ANONYMOUS

It sounds like it's the "head over heels in love with" goal that's causing the kink: Something is driving you to fall for guys who are busy falling short. Maybe deep down you don't feel you deserve real love. Or you self-sabotage to gain control (by choosing to love men who disappoint you from the outset, there are no surprises.) Or maybe your early male role models were less than stellar, so you're trying to make up for it by finding a bad guy and "redeeming" him by making him love you. Heck, maybe you just watched one too many bad Lifetime movies.

In order to understand what draws you to people who treat you poorly and to relationships that are bound for disaster, you've got to understand what emotional purpose that's serving for you. A good therapist could help you get at it, and group counseling would be a great additional way to gain some insight and connect with others struggling to create fulfilling relationships. And, uh, about your marriage? It's time to face the music, and counseling can help you get there as well.

Send your mental health and emotional wellness questions to Andrea Bonior, Ph.D. at baggage@readexpress.com. This column is not a substitute for one-on-one care.

The Downside to Dairy

ASA NUTRITIONIST. I think people who don't drink milk deserve to know that they can get plenty of calcium from leafy greens, beans, and fortified juices and soymilk ("Non-Dairy Diets," Oct. 31). These foods are healthy alternatives to cow's milk, which is high in cholesterol and saturated fat and has been linked to prostate and ovarian cancer. Although milk is heavily marketed as a health food, it can cause serious gastrointestinal symptoms for many people. Even those who are not lactose intolerant should be concerned about the unhealthy aspects of dairy products.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You'll have the opportunity to improve the situation at home and increase communication. All will want to tell it like it is.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Take care of issues at home that are affecting you no matter where you go. If it's on your mind all the time, it's worth attention.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An established routine can give you much-needed stability. It's the things that are unusual that can knock you off your plate, predictably.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) What comes, comes — and there's little you can do about that. What will make the difference, however, is your immediate reaction.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You won't be able to fall back on any of your habitual excuses. If you can't deliver the goods, you must be willing to pay the price.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your enjoyment may be threatened by a run-in with someone who is not on your level in any way. You must avoid an emotional response.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Is there any way you can get out of a current jam? Certainly. But you're not acknowledging that you have the power to do it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Get back together with the gang, but promise each other that you'll walk a more profitable path.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Have a little more fun, and serve yourself as you are so quick to serve others. You have a few cravings now, too.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone may surprise you with his or her intimate knowledge of your own current motives. This person would make a good ally.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Speed can be dangerous for you; slow down and use great caution when approaching areas you know to be fraught with hazards.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may lose track of your standing for a time, but don't panic. Just keep up the pace and you'll recover your confidence in no time.

JESSICA SIMPSON says the relentless gossip about her marriage to Nick Lachey drove her to visit a therapist. "Yes I have," the singer-actress tells Teen People in its December-January issue, on newsstands Friday. "I respect knowledge of the psyche. I would be a therapist if I weren't an entertainer." Jessica, 25, posed for the cover of the magazine with her sister, ASHLEE. Both talk about the difficult challenges of the past year. Ashlee, 21, recently released her second album, "I Am Me," and it debuted at the top of the charts. But she has still had to live down her embarrassing lip-synch disaster on "Saturday Night Live" last year. Despite all that, she remains internally motivated: "I love to sing. It's a joy to me. I don't do it for anyone else — I do it for me." (AP)

The Perfect Defense: His Piercings Made Him Do It

DENNIS RODMAN has settled a speeding ticket that briefly led to a judge issuing an arrest warrant, an attorney and his agent said Monday. Rodman, who faced a speeding and reckless driving charge, agreed to plead guilty to speeding, pay $516.50 in fines and make a $200 charity donation, according to The Denver Post. (AP)

Slater Climbs to Heights, Suffers Fall, Survives to Do Theater

CHRISTIAN SLATER reportedly had a great fall over the weekend — from the rooftop of a neighbor of Paris Hilton. Slater, 36, was at a party thrown by Hilton and had apparently scrambled up onto the roof after the neighbors complained about noise coming from all the famous people next door, E! Online reported. The "Heathers" star was last seen in a courtroom battling misdemeanor harassment charges. (EXPRESS)

Did you know Eastern Market is more than a Metro stop?

In fact, the historic market has stood at 7th and C Streets NE for more than 125 years. Today, Eastern Market is a vibrant nexus of arts, crafts, fresh produce and other goods for sale, and it's all just one block north of Eastern Market station. Listed on the National Register of Historic Places and designated a local landmark, Eastern Market is the last of Washington's 19th century markets to remain in continuous operation. Eastern Market is living history. For more than 100 years the market-day scene has been reenacted at Eastern Market every Saturday. Farmers from Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia bring fresh produce, baked goods and flowers to the Market's farmer's line. Among these farmers are families that have been coming to the market since it was built.

If holiday shopping is in your future, Eastern Market is a great place to find unexpected bargains and one-of-a-kind gifts — many made by the exhibitors themselves. You can talk to artists and crafters, haggle for bargains with the vendors, and choose edible delights from a bounty of gourmet foods. Expand your walking radius from the market itself and discover more charming restaurants and shops in the surrounding Capitol Hill neighborhood.

Hours of Operation

South Hall Food Merchants: Open Tuesday-Saturday, 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Closed Monday

Open Air Farmers' Line: Open Saturday and Sunday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Singing Capital Chorus Presents "Metro Melodies" Nov. 5

The stage at George Washington University's Lisner Auditorium will light up with scenes from the Metrorail system Nov. 5 at 7:30 p.m., as the more than 50 men of the a cappella Singing Capital Chorus present their 59th annual Harvest of Harmony concert. This year's "Metro Melodies" theme will transport the audience through a musical subway experience, including replicated scenes of Gallery Place and Smithsonian Metrorail stations. The Singing Capital Chorus, a chapter of the Barbershop Harmony Society, is conducted by Maestro Bill Colosimo. The show also features the award-winning group Iguanas in Flight and Washington's acclaimed Capital Chord Factory. Lisner Auditorium is at 21st and H Streets, NW, Washington, DC. Tickets, $18, $15 and $12, are available at the door or call 301-801-0232. For more information, visit singingcapitalchorus.org.
